

SUMMARY STATEMENT

Magee v. Thompson Creek Mining Co., No. 36352

Magee appealed the Industrial Commission's determination of Magee's level of impairment and benefits stemming from a work-related injury. The Supreme Court affirms the Industrial Commission's decision that Magee failed to establish a change in condition, that the Commission's 2004 decision did not result in manifest injustice, and that the issues regarding medical benefits and disability were barred under res judicata.