

SUMMARY STATEMENT

Locker v. How Soel, Inc., No. 37622

The Supreme Court upheld the Industrial Commission's finding that Locker was insubordinate when she failed to provide a medical release at the request of her employer which constituted employment-related misconduct and rendered Locker ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits.